BOARD PROMOTES FIVE TEACHERS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Yesterday's Session Held Mainly Behind Closed Doors.

Following twenty minutes of open conference, the Board of Education at Franklin School yesterday afternoon went into executive session and remained closed with school officials until adjournment at 6:20 last night.

While the subject matter discussed was not revealed, it is said that it concerned appointment of teachers. The board is also believed to have had under consideration the reduction in grade of several teachers whose demotions were recommended last spring by their principals.

Due to the executive session the board did not take up the question of liberalizing the policy relating to uses of the schools as civic centers. Refusal of the board to allow the Central High School auditorium to be used by the New York Symphony Orchestra because it is a mercenary enterprise has led, it is said, to demands that the schools be thrown open to wider use by citizens and organizations regardless of pecuniary, racial, religious or political considerations.

The following teachers in the public schools, upon recommendation of the superintendent, were promoted by the board: S. W. Walcott, E. M. Peoples, Mary Eastlake, E. McD. George, L. L. Marshall.

The following appointments were approved: Alida Hartman, Claire Laughlin, L. P. Pope, Ruth Puckett, J. L. Kochka, W. R. Stokes, J. N. Reeder, Richard Gantt, J. A. Johnson, Joseph Duncan, Annie Hurley, L. V. Gringale, Ivaline Maxwell, A. B. Stokes, Z. M. Bundy, Lucille Silbert, S. I. Daniel, and G. H. Woodward.

ROTARIANS HEAR RESTAURANT MEN

Hygiene Expert Pleads for Decrease in Infant Mortality.

Talks on the relation of Rotary Club ideals to plans of the National Restaurant Association were made before the Rotary Club by Harry S. Baldwin, John Welch and Guy Gundacker, officers of the association, at the Rotary Club luncheon at the Willard Hotel yesterday. It was pointed out that thirteen of fifteen officers of the Restaurant Association were Rotary members, making for a similarity of thought between the two organizations. The necessity for decreasing infant mortality was emphasized by Harry Shaw, of Albany. He invited Rotarians to the American Child Hygiene Association convention opening here today.

Thanks were extended to all members who aided in making the Denby dinner a success, by Charles Semmer, committee chairman. He especially thanked Roland Robbins, manager of Keith's Theater, for his assistance. Several solos were sung by George Harold Miller, of the Washington College of Music, accompanied by George Thompson.

Robert Lawrence, director and organizer of Music Week, led the club in singing.

LEGION MAY FIGHT FOR WINE AND BEER

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—A bitter fight at the coming American Legion convention here for the adoption of a "light wine and beer" resolution is anticipated.

Reports are current that such a resolution will be brought up. The drys, according to rumors, are lining up in an effort to stop the resolution in committee.

D. C. CADET CORPS WINS ARMY PRAISE

General Staff Selects High School Brigade as Model for Other Schools.

Washington High School Cadet Corps will be used as a model for high schools throughout the United States, according to plans now under preparation by General Staff of the War Department.

Impressed by the performance of the local cadet regiments as compared with other high school cadet corps inspected throughout the country, Brig. Gen. William Lassiter yesterday asked Assistant Superintendent Stephen E. Kramer to prepare a history of the cadet corps in the high schools since its inception in 1882. Lieut. Col. Wallace M. Craigie, professor of military science and tactics, was asked to submit a brief describing the tactics and methods of instruction employed in the local high school brigade.

Secretary of War Weeks, who witnessed the competitive high school company drills last year, is said to have declared the Washington cadets the best he had ever witnessed.

School officials, in conjunction with Col. Craigie, it is reported, will begin immediately to collect data upon which to base their report to the general staff. The brief will cover the work of the Washington High School Cadet Corps for the forty years it has been a part of the school system.

Meetings will not be open to the public. Arrangements to secure admittance may be made in advance by members, according to a statement made by F. X. Wholley, director of the Washington Bureau, yesterday.

Georgetown University law students, numbering nearly 1,500, must constitute themselves a committee of the proposed $500,000 endowment fund for the university a reality, President John B. Creeden, S. J., urged at the formal opening of the school last night.

Co-operation on the part of the students rather than personal contribution, is what Georgetown seeks, President Creeden assured them.

Dean George E. Hamilton pointed out that the law school, with the biggest enrollment in the country, is looking forward to an unprecedented year. J. Spaulding Slattery, Washington attorney, addressed the student body.

MAY ADAPT COAL ORDERS TO TYPE OF FURNACE USED

Fuel Officials Point to Scarcity of Egg and Stove Sizes.

The Public Utilities Commission, acting as the local fuel administration, may find it necessary to order the varying kinds of coal delivered according to the type of furnace, stove or heating system owned by the consumer, it was intimated yesterday.

The shortage of anthracite coal, especially of the egg, stove, and chestnut sizes, forced the commission to issue a statement yesterday urging the use of other kinds of coal.

A study of the orders for coal now on file has revealed the following facts, according to the Commission:

That many tenants or owners are asking for egg or stove coal, even though the residences are equipped with hot-air heating systems.

Residents whose houses are heated by radiators are insisting on red ash coal and insisting that white ash will not do.

Many apartment houses are calling for anthracite coal for use in their hot-water heating systems.

"Consumers of coal must realize that during the coming winter it is not a question of getting the particular kind or size of coal to which they are accustomed, or which they prefer, but of getting a sufficient quantity of any kind which will heat their homes," said the commission.

Can Use Broken Coal.

It was pointed out that the majority of hot air furnaces can be operated efficiently and economically with so-called furnace or broken coal. The amount of this coal available in the city is considerable. The commission is planning to permit the filling of orders for a two months' supply as compared with a one month's supply of the egg, stove or chestnut sizes. In regard to the use of white ash coal, instead of red ash, the commission states that "white ash is a splendid and efficient substitute." "If your dealer cannot furnish the former but offers the latter, don't refuse to take it—you may have great difficulty getting either kind later in the winter."

Urged to Use Soft Coal.

Only a few of the hot water heating systems in hotels and apartment houses need anthracite coal, according to the commission. Its suggestion is that these consumers use soft coal and, unless they do it voluntarily, it will be necessary to order this done. Bituminous coal is relatively low in price and plentiful in the city.

The commission yesterday warned coal dealers not to raise their prices to the maximum set by the commission in a recent order. Check is being kept on all deliveries made at the price paid and any dealer found jumping his price without a corresponding increase in the price paid at the mines will find himself without coal, it was intimated.

Coke Best Substitute for Hard Coal, Says Bureau of Mines

Coke is the best substitute for anthracite coal in the domestic furnace, if it is available, the Bureau of Mines announces. The bureau has prepared instructions for the use of bituminous house-heating furnaces, pending the scarcity of hard coal in the homes.

Copies of "Use of Bituminous Coal in House-Heating Furnaces" may be obtained from the Bureau of Mines on application.

COURT FREES TWO ON WEAPON CHARGE

Two gun "toters" escaped jail sentences yesterday because Judge Hardison in Police Court did not believe they had criminal intent. They were William Rieinger, a coal miner from Homer City, Pa., and Albert H. Watts, of Baltimore, Md., who said he was a private detective.

Rieinger was found asleep in a parked automobile at First and E streets northwest early yesterday by Policemen O'Meara. A small gun was found in his shirt pocket. He said he was hiking about the country on a vacation. A sentence of six months was suspended.

Watts also was arrested by Policemen O'Meara on New Jersey avenue northwest after O'Meara claimed he had annoyed passerby. Watts said he worked as a private detective in Baltimore and as a carpenter in this city. The court fined him $10 for being drunk and suspended a six months sentence.

Held for Grand Jury.

Rex Snyder, colored, 23 years old, 416 Washington street northwest, was ordered held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Cora Winfield, colored, 35 years old, 2807 Olive street northwest. Tuesday night as a result of injuries received in falling from the auto Snyder was driving.
